

Human Subjects Approval

A human subject is considered "a living individual about whom an Investigator (whether professional or student) conducting research obtains data through intervention or interaction directly with the individual or with his/her identifiable private information or an individual who is or becomes a participant in research, either as a recipient of the test article or as a control."

If you intend to survey people or attempt to manipulate their behavior experimentally, you MUST receive approval from the Human Subjects Protection Program (<http://www.irb.arizona.edu/home>). Dr. Randy Gimblett is the School's contact for HSPP, and is available to discuss your research and whether it would require HSPP approval.
